

Cohort sizes were determined by the distribution of practice among the eight contributing anaesthesiologists, not by any study procedure. Three used fractionation routinely, four used bolus injection routinely, and one varied.